He urged the necessity of improving the system of farming in that State, recommended that they should raise less cotton and more corn, showed how admirably the State was fitted for success in manufacturing, and closed by referring to the stirring political events going on in Europe, and the gradual spread of the principles of civil liberty.

Bev. Wm. Pinkney, D. D., has been elected assistant bishop of the Boiscopal Diocese of Maryland, of which Bishop Whittingham is bishop. For some time the question of in payment of taxes. electing an assistant bishop has been urged upon the attention of Episcopalians of Maryland by the increasing infirmities and ill-health of Bishop Whittingham, which have rendered it necessary for him at times to call in the aid of bishops of other States to assist him in the performances of his Episcopal duties. Dr. Pinkney is the present rector of Ascension Parish, Washington, D. C. -The luxury which pervades the White House reminds one of the magnificent splendor that characterized the days of the Reman Empire. President Grant and his family are making themsalves very popular in the social line, giving brilliant receptions, bountiful lunches and entertainments of all sorts. The tables are always set out with the choicest fruits the markets of the world afford, while the rarest flowers and the most luscious wines, in gold and silver gobiets, adorn the massive sideboards of the Presidential Mansion, and all this at the expense of an over-taxed and suffering people.

-The troubles in the Methodist Book Concern at New York have broken out again in a new form, and promise a long and tedious investigation. In the first instance charges of maiversation against some of the managers, and heavy losses to the concern were made, and investigated by the book committee. This investigation resulted in a report from the majority exonerating the managers and declaring the losses trivial and easily accounted for. A minority report, sustaining the charges, was also submitted; but as it seemed to be accepted by press and public, all but the official organs of the denomination, a new feature has been introduced in the case, in the impeachment and trial of Dr. Lanahan, the junior book agent, who first discovered the "irregularities" and preferred the charges. A call for a meeting of the whole Book Committee in New York, and on Thursday the session began. The proceedings are secret, but it is understood that Dr. Lanahan is on his trial for bringing a scandal upon the church, with five charges and numerous specifications preferred against him in support of this accusation. Whether this means of preventing scandal will prove efficacious remains to be seen, but it is nsidered certain that the offending agent is to be suspended, pending his trial, which will result in his expulsion should the charges against him be sustained. It is stated that a majority of the bishops and of the denomination at large are on the side of Dr. Lanahan, and it is equally for the good of the denomina tion and the public interest that the whole matter should have a final and equitable set-

A Washington dispatch, of Friday, says "A trick was played upon the House to-day by Mr. Cessna, from the Committee of Elections, who had charge of the case of Wallace vs. Simpson, contested election for representative from the fourth district of South Carolina. The Indications when this case was called up before were that the opposition from members of both parties to the admission of either can didate would be strong. Simpson was ineligible under the Fourteenth amendment to the constitution, but he received the highest number of votes, and the committee reported that next highest vote is entitled to the seat. Mr. Dawes, Mr. Paine, and others of the Republican side, and the Democrats generally, argued that the House had repeatedly decided that the disqualification of a candidate receiving a majority of the votes did not entitle the one receiving the next highest vote to a seat. Notwithstanding this general opposition to giving the seat to Wallace, Mr. Cessna, just after the House convened, and while members were in some confusion and .- not paying attention, passed up and had read at the Speaker's desk a resolution declaring Wallace entitled to the seat. The vote was put, and a few voices answered in the affirmative-none in the negative-and Mr. Cessna obtained leave to make a found in the report. This arrested the attenhab-bub was created on account of the sort of snap-judgment that had been taken while the members were unaware of what was going on, but it was too late, and Mr. Wallace was sworn in."

The Outstanding Issues of the Bank of the State of South Carolina.

As connected with the late important decision of Judge Carpenter, relative to the bills of the Bank of the State of South Caroupon the early and final settlement of those issues of the Bank, we propose to call attention to the case of Furman vs. Nichol, lately decided by the Supreme Court of the United States, and involving the rights of the billholders of the Bank of the State of Ten-

In 1838 the State of Tennessee chartered a bank in the name and for the benefit of the State, and pledged the faith and credit | skies. of the State to its support. It was further provided by the charter "that the bills or ' payable, on demand in gold or silver coin, shall be receivable at the treasury of the State, and by all ... x-collectors and other public officers, i. all payments for taxes " and other moneys due the State."

By the new code of the State of Tennessee it was provided that tax-collectors should receive in payment of taxes only such bank notes as are current at par.

On the 3d August, 1866, Furman tendered to Nichol, a public officer, in payment of taxes, certain bills of the Bank of Tennessee, issued prior to May, 1861. The bills | bia on June 15th next: having been refused, Furman applied for a mandamus, requiring that officer to accept them. The petition for the mandamus did not show when the bills came into the hands of Furman.

The Supreme Court of Tennessee refused the mandamus, and the petitioner appealed the Supreme Court of the United States. In this court it was held that:

1. The section of the charter of the bank above quoted was a contract in the nature of a guarantee between the State and the holders of the notes of the bank, and that it was not in the constitutional power of the Legislature to repeal the section, so as to affect the notes which at the time were in circulation.

2. That this guarantee is not restricted to the person who receives the bill from the bank, but attaches to the note and goes with it everywhere, and invites every one having taxes to pay to take it, and obliges the State to receive it in payment of taxes.

the new code of the State of Tennessee, and Georgetown and Colleton and Beaufortthat the court does not favor the repeal of charter privileges by mere implication.

to the billholders the writ of mandamus, not their people be represented in the Grand requiring the tax-collector to take the bills

It appears that soon after the date of issue (1861) of the bills in question, a disruption of the government of Tennessee took place; one portion of it maintaining its relations to the Federal Government, and claiming to be the government-another portion of it making the same claim, and taking refuge within the Confederate lines. This latter fraction, to which the Supreme Court of the United States applies the term "insurgents," got possession of, and took with it in its retreat, the assets of "The Bank of the State of Ten-'nessee." and, it is alleged, continued the issue of bills in the name of that bank within the territory of the Confederacy. As to the bills issued under these circumstances, the court declines the expression of an opinion; a reticence which is not of much consequence to the holders of bills of the Bank of the State of South Carolina, inasmuch as that Bank was never placed in similar circumstances, and the late decision of Judge Carpenter has established that its bills issued after December, 1860, are on the legal footing of those issued before that date.

The bearing of the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States upon the entire settlement of this vexed case of the Bank of the State of South Carolina, lies in the fact that the clause of the charter of the Bank of the State of Tennessee, under consideration, is identical with, and evidently a copy of a section of the charter of the Bank of the State of South Carolina, and although the late Appeal Court of this State took an oppusite view of the law, the subsequent action of the supreme Court of the United States sufficient number of the committee to gives to the billholders of the Bank of the make it 'official ' signed a telegraphic State of South Carolina ample redress under the mandamus of the highest judicial tribunal of the country. Inasmuch as a large proportion of the bills of the Bank of the State of South Carolina have been absorbed by the issue of bonds under the act of 1868. and as the bills issued in 1863 and 1864 will be subject to be heavily scaled, the gross amount outstanding of this State liability cannot be very great; but it will be interesting to our readers to know the course pursued by the State of Tennessee in circumstances similar to those in which this State may be placed. Upon the publication of the judgment of the Supreme Court in Furman vs. Nichol, the Legislature of Tennessee promptly met its obligations, by enacting that the taxcollectors of the State should receive the bills declared to be valid in payment of taxes, and repealed its statutes containing contrary provisions. To prevent, however, the embarrassment which would arise from the necessity of meeting this indebtedness at one time (amounting to $3,500,000,) and with a view of distributing the payment of the bills over a series of years, it has been provided ful of cigar smoke in a thin stream up to the Wallace (Republican) having received the declared, by a stamp upon its face, to have been paid. By this wise measure, the State of Tennessee obtains an extension of four years upon its debt, and the billholder se cures his end without injury to the public finances.

Taken the Back Track.

Senator Cain, a Methodist minister and editor of the Missionary Record, gives his Radical brethren an exquisite example of what is usually called "ground and lofty

Only a week ago, Senator Cain denounced with the energy of injured innocence, the corruption of the Radical leaders and the statement setting forth the facts of the case as manifold vices and follies of the Columbia Ring. Nor was this any new outburst on tion of the members of the House, and quite a the part of this political parson. During the last session of the Legislature he exhorted the sinners to repent, and warned the party that the Sirocco would come in the heats of the dawning summer. The Reve rend Senator seemed to be thoroughly in earnest, and he almost convinced the honest people of the State that he intended to pass a sponge over the record, and keep a clean slate for the future.

But this fit of political piety has come to an untimely end. In the Missionary Record lina, and as foreshadowing the possible, we of Saturday, Senator Cain flings to the may say the probable, effect of that decision | breeze the name of Robert K. Scott as his nominee for Governor for 1871, and urges all the people to rally on the side of him who has "for two years guided the destinies of "this State with an unswerving hand, and "has at all times sought to subserve the interest of the whe'r people." The "evident honesty" or Governor Scott is held up to public commendation, while his "le-"niency" and "justice" are exalted to the

This, it will be admitted, is a very sudder conversion, and we are curious to know notes of the said corporation originally whether it was effected by a vermillion edict "made payable, or which shall have become or a green-back ukase, a "fat office" or the 'lifting of a mortgage"-which, unless ru mor be altogether wrong, has been "lifted" more than once before. It will all leak out. In a little while we may hope to know the fee paid the senatorial acrobat for this last proof of his astonishing political agility.

The Signers of the Sampson Bond.

We have received from our Columbia cor respondent a full statement of the reasons which led him to believe, and to telegraph to THE NEWS, that Governor Scott and General Stolbrand were the bondsmen of Sampson, the forger. The whole matter was enshrouded in impenetrable secresy; all official information as to the signers of the bond was refused alike to journalists and private individuals: it was rumored-and generally believed-that Governor Scott had cone on the bond; and, finally, our correspondent had what appeared to be unquestionable information that Scott and Stol brand were the bondsmen. That informa tion, although since proved to be f, was of a character to command the confidence and trust of the most prudent and most cautious man.

Not a shadow of blame rests upon our cor respondent, and we cannot condemn too warmly the malicious spirit which has prompted the assertion that currency was given by our correspondent, and by TEE News, to a statement known to be false. All our information on the subject came from our Columbia correspondent, for whose rectitude and scrupulous fair-dealing this paper holds itself at all times responsible.

THE "Republican Party" of Georgetown County, in mass meeting assembled, adopted resolutions declaring that Whittemore is ne longer worthy of the support of the Republican party; that the action of Congress was just, and that to support Whittemore is to justify the assertion that the colored people are unfit to exercise, intelligently, the right of suffrage.

THE Augusta Constitutionalist very kindly wishes the South Carolina Reformers "better luck than the Richmond (Va.) Reform-'ers have had." We shall be perfectly well satisfied if the Reform movement gives South Carolina what the Conservative movement gave Richmond and all Virginia-an honest and able Executive like Gilbert C. Walker.

THE New York Sun gets off the following: When General Grant was told that the Republican party in New York was dead, he would have made the same reply that Anaxngoras did when informed that his son had died, I never supposed I had begotten an immortal,' if he had studied Greek. But in his unclassical way he answered quite as well as the stoic did. He shut one eye and blew a mouththat the bills so received shall be reissued ceiling. Translated, it said: 'Parties are and used as currency; upon each reissued dreadfully short-lived. There is nothing enbill one-fourth of the par value of the bill is during but Havana cigars. Let us smoke."
